

Stars

You probably know many actors, singers, scientists (Wissenschaftler), artists (Künstler) and other stars. Many of them might call Great Britain their home.

To learn more about British stars, start reading at number 1.

- ① Let's start with music. This is Adele. She is a singer-songwriter from England. She has won many prizes – one of them was the Oscar for Best Original Song! Now look for Ed Sheeran, another famous singer-songwriter.
- ② This is Hugh. But although he is also a British actor, his last name is Laurie.
- ③ Coldplay are a successful British band. You have probably heard some of their songs, like 'The Scientist' or 'A sky full of stars'. The band was started in the 1990s and today it is known all over the world. Now let's get to film. Look for Emma Watson – a young British actress (Schauspielerin).
- ④ The Beatles were a band in the 1960s. This is not the band we are looking for.
- ⑤ This is William, Prince William. William Shakespeare was not a prince.
- ⑥ This is David Beckham. He is a famous football player who played for the England national team. He also played for the famous football clubs Manchester United and Real Madrid. What about science? Are there any famous scientists in Britain? Oh yes – Stephen Hawking.
- ⑦ Joanne K. Rowling had worked as an author for some time when she started writing about Harry Potter. Her books about this young wizard (Zauberer) made her rich and famous. Next we are looking for a famous British football player. His first name is David.
- ⑧ Stephen Hawking was a famous physicist (Physiker). He wrote books which explained difficult scientific (wissenschaftlich) ideas about black holes (Löcher) and other theories. Now we are looking for another author, a playwright (Theaterautor) called William Shakespeare.
- ⑨ This is Hugh Jackman, an actor from Australia.
- ⑩ This is a painting by the famous artist Picasso. This is not a Banksy.

Stars

You probably know many actors, singers, scientists (Wissenschaftler), artists (Künstler) and other stars. You might even have some posters of them in your room. Many stars call Great Britain their home.

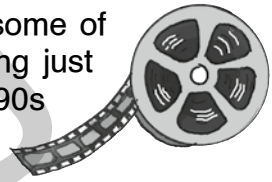

To learn more about British stars, start reading at number 1.

- ① Let's start with music. Great Britain can be proud of (stolz auf) so many singers and bands, it's hard to pick just a few. This is Adele. She is a singer-songwriter from England. She won lots of awards (Auszeichnungen), one of them being an Oscar for Best Original Song. Wow! Now look for Ed Sheeran.

- ② This is a Hugh. Correct. But although he is a British actor, his last name is Laurie.

- ③ Coldplay are a current British band. You have probably heard some of their songs, like 'The Scientist', 'A sky full of stars' or 'Something just like this' with the Chainsmokers. The band was formed in the 1990s and is known all over the world. But Britain has so much more to offer than musicians. Let's get to film. Look for Emma Watson – a young British actress (Schauspielerin).

- ④ The Beatles were a band in the 1960s. They had numerous number one hits and were successful not only in Britain but all over the world. They split up in 1970 but are still very popular. Ask your parents or even grandparents!

- ⑤ This is William, Prince William. William Shakespeare was not a prince.

- ⑥ This is David Beckham. He is a football player who twice came second in FIFA World Player. He played for the England national team and the famous football clubs Manchester United and Real Madrid. What about the field of science? Anything to offer, Britain? Oh yes. Stephen Hawking.

Do you want to know who David Beckham is married to? Read the bold (fettgedruckt) letters.

- ⑦ Joanne K. Rowling worked as an author for some time until she had the idea of a lifetime: she invented a little boy called Harry Potter. The books she wrote about this young wizard (Zauberer) made her rich and famous. Next we are looking for a famous British football player.

